

Design Research Program 2021

Investigating the Future of Work

PHI Design Research Program

We are proud to announce the launch of the 2021 PHI Space Design Research Program. In these unprecedented times, research and thought leadership become more important than ever as vehicles for new thinking, new approaches, and a path forward to a better future.

Who should participate

We would like to invite early-career professionals from all geographies, to participate in a 8 week long design research program. While a specialization in real estate, architecture, design, engineering is preferred, we are open to applications from varied backgrounds.

Area of Design Research:

Future Places of Work.

Objective & Outcome:

The objective is to get an understanding of changes in the workplace based on changing human needs.

Understanding market conditions and how that shapes future spaces.

Understanding the role of technology and sustainability in placemaking.

Compilation of a framework and report of design recommendations and behavioral trends.

Please send us an email at hr@phispace.sg to apply. Applications close August 31, 2021.